NEW YORK, Dec. 31—Hitler discoursed on, scarcely pausing for breath. Inside his peculiar mind he was then and there already at grips with Roosevelt, mentally grasping for the throat of his deadly foe and tearing him to bits in an inborn rage over wrongs and grievances he believes he has suffered at the hands of the man with the smile in Washington.

I sat there listening to this tirade of bitterness rooted in fear; he gave the impression of a man who had had victory in his grasp only to have it torn out of his hands again by the elusive foe who haunted his dreams.

Hitler repeated much of what had been said often and which since has become superceded through the declaration of war between America and Germany. He declared that American ships of any kind coming under the range of torpedo tubes or German guns enroute to England would be sent to the bottom. His U-boats, he said, were equal to the task of enforcing that blockade against

LOST CONDUCTOR TO BE HUNTED IN MIAMI RIVER

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 31—Law enforcement agents, seeking William P. Faber, missing Big Four railroad conductor, planned today to drag the Miami River at Middletown in their search for the missing man.

Faber disappeared from his train Sunday night between Middletown and Carlisle. Because of heavy rains last week, the Miami is several feet above normal stage at the point where the railroad crosses and authorities said dragging operations may be delayed.

Meanwhile, at Dayton, Detective Captain O. L. Kincaid indicated that Theodore Battle, Dayton Negro youth who was arrested for questioning when he left the train from which Faber disappeared, would be released soon. Battle denied having knowledge of the conductor's disappearance.

BIG NAVAL BASE MUST BE HELD, BRITAIN WARNS

Success Of Offensive To Be Started In Future Depends On Area

BALANCED FLEET NEEDED

R. A. F. Smash At Japanese Sungei Patani Region Disclosed

LONDON, Dec. 31—British military authorities declared today that the great Far Eastern naval base of Singapore "must be held"—and that on this depends the "success of the offensive which we will launch in the near future."

It is essential for a well-balanced Anglo-American fleet to be established quickly in the Far East, if Japanese successes are to be halted and if Singapore is to be held, the authorities said.

An authoritative commentator said: "We see with sadness what unopposed sea power can accomplish."

"We can only frustrate further successes by destruction or by neutralizing the Japanese forces. The Japanese have well-balanced units, including battleships and aircraft carriers, which are able to range over tremendously wide areas, achieving very considerable results."

"We have not as yet on our side two strong, well-balanced fleets."

"The American fleet is well balanced. But at Singapore we have not at present the necessary, well-balanced naval strength."

Up To Americans

"Until our forces there can be built up we shall have to rely to a great extent on the American Navy to regain control of the Pacific."

"We shall have to re-establish refueling bases over wide areas. Our base at Singapore must be held by all possible means in our power."

"On the retention of this place dominating the whole Pacific area depends the success of the offensive which we will launch in the near future."

COLLEGIANS DO WELL WITH NEW DEFENSE RACKET

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 31—Two handsome young college boys who talked a number of northside residents into purchasing sand at 50 cents a bucket to put out incendiary bombs in case of an air raid were sought by Pittsburgh police today.

Most of the residents laughed about their gullibility meanwhile, but some were angry, especially those who were taunted by their husbands about being "hoaxed."

The salesmen went from door to door pointing out that it was best to be prepared and claiming their sales were backed by Civilian Defense officials.

Said one woman: "For 50 cents I got a 10-cent bucket and eight quarts of sand worth less than a penny. If I get my hands on those boys, I'll tie them in the kitchen and call police."

She added that the boys were driving a light green automobile with a Penn State sticker on a door window.

Another woman in the neighborhood said the whole thing looked "phony" to her, but she needed a new galvanized bucket—like the boys had—and some sand for her flowers.

"I thought the bucket and the sand were worth about 50 cents," she explained.

Fish Story Wins Title

Barber Pole Required To Catch Game In Unadilla

BURLINGTON, Wis., Dec. 31—A hairy tale of the fishing days in the good old Unadilla and of fish that grew beards today was adjudged the winning entry in the 1941 National Liars' Contest, sponsored by the Burlington Liars' Club Inc.

The story was submitted by R. C. Cross of Wausau, Wis., who thus became the lying champion of America for the year. Given honorable mention in the contest were stories submitted by Vic Simon of Evansville, Ind.; Carl S. Harwood of Baldwinville, Mass.; and Vacil D. Kalinoff of Stillwater, Minn.

About 50 percent of the entries this year were pegged on a war angle. O. C. Hulett, president of the club, announced. Hulett said a motto of "Keep 'em Laughing" had been adopted by the club "for the duration."

The winning lie was as follows: "You should have gone fishing with me in the old days in the Unadilla. One of the natives accidentally spilled a bottle of hair tonic in the river one day and all the fish started to grow long beards. Their beards got so long that after a while all we had to do to catch them was to stick up a red and white barber pole on the bank, hang out a copy of the Police Gazette and holler 'next!'"

Simon's story related how World War soldiers kept their clothes clean by carrying Troy, Ind., gold-enrod in their pockets. Cooties would then get hay fever, sneeze, and blow out all the dirt, he said. A coat with "fast" colors enabled Harwood's racing car to win a race while Kalinoff developed giant mosquitoes which not only tormented axis troops in Africa but brought back valuable blood to be used for transfusions for injured soldiers!

WEAVER NAMED TO ACT AS AIR CORPS CHIEF

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—Maj. Gen. Walter R. Weaver, commander of the Southeast Air Corps training center, Montgomery, Ala., today was assigned by the War Department as the acting chief of the air corps with headquarters in Washington.

The War Department, in special orders, instructed Gen. Weaver to assume his duties immediately.

Gen. Weaver, a native of Charleston, S. C., was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1908, and aside from foreign service in the Philippines and China, he commanded the air service mechanics school at St. Paul, Minn., during the World War.

Gen. Weaver became commander of the southeast training center at Maxwell Field December 17, 1940.

JAPANESE flyers who bombed Pearl Harbor came equipped with crudely phrased propaganda leaflets as well as high explosives. Pictured here as it was reproduced by duplicating machine on rough foolscap, the propaganda leaflet advised 'n its Eng"sh heading—"You damned! Go to the devil!" Beneath this greeting were drawings of an aircraft carrier and battleship exploding, a fish spitting destruction, and a caricature of President Roosevelt. The Nipponese characters read, "Listen to the voice of doom! Open your eyes, blind fools!"

City's Observance Of New Year To Be Quiet

Many Metropolitan Centers To See Factories Continuing Operation

Circleville's observance of the New Year's arrival will be a quiet one, a checkup of activities planned for the evening revealed.

Numerous private parties are being conducted, and the annual Elks' Club New Year's Eve frolic is on the schedule.

Police are expecting the celebration locally to be a more restrained one, with the war making persons a little more conservative. Then, too, the blackout created by street lights being kept off may cut down a little on the usual revelry.

From other cities come the following reports:

RUSSIAN DRIVE SPREADS INTO CRIMEAN AREA

MOSCOW, Dec. 31—Extension of the Russian offensive to the Crimean Peninsula and recapture of the strategic ports of Kerch and Theodosia by combined Red Army and navy assaults were announced by the Soviet high command today.

(A British radio broadcast heard by NBC said: "The Berlin radio admits that 'Russian forces have taken a place on the Crimea,' which must refer to the capture of Kerch. Berlin also states that one Soviet destroyer was sunk off the Crimean coast in the Sea of Azov and that one Russian cruiser was damaged.")

(The BBC also stated that Russian successes in the Crimea are not yet ended and that the Germans still are retreating with the Russians at their heels.

(A Toulouse broadcast picked up by CBS said a wave of extreme cold and snowstorms is sweeping over southeastern Europe.)

Red Army forces recrossed the narrow strait of Kerch under cover of thundering navy fire and landed on the southeastern Crimean coast. There they split up into two columns, one taking Kerch and the other Theodosia. Both ports were recaptured after "stubborn fighting," the high command said. The entire operation was completed in two days.

ORDNANCE SCHOOL READY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 31—Following designation of the University of Michigan as a new training center for junior ordnance inspectors, it was announced today that plans are under way to inaugurate the 12-weeks course of study January 19. Some 300 students are expected to participate in the pay-as-you-learn program which entails a $125 monthly salary.

MacARTHUR'S VALIANT MEN FIGHT BRAVELY DESPITE GREAT ODDS

HIGH STANDARD OF LIVING MAY BE CUT IN U. S.

More Work, Greater Taxes, Fewer Luxuries Certain In Emergency

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—More work, higher taxes and fewer luxuries in an unprecedented transformation of the national economy are the lot of the American people for the duration of the war, according to government economists who today summed up the implications of President Roosevelt's newest war program.

Under the program, revealed in part by Mr. Roosevelt, the American standard of living—highest in the world—will be lowered temporarily because of the necessity to divert a major part of manufacturing facilities to the production of war materials.

The national income will be spurred up to $100,000,000,000 in 1942 by government war spending, but individual and corporate taxes will be hiked to defray a goodly portion of the $50,000,000,000 that President Roosevelt wants to spend annually for guns, planes and ships to whip the axis.

Civilians To Suffer

Scarcity of raw materials, labor and machines will cut production for civilian use to the bone, with some items which require scarce materials disappearing from consumer markets completely.

Already, the treasury is paying out more than $1,600,000,000 each month under the existing defense program, but this figure will be dwarfed into insignificance as the President's war program begins to hit full stride next year. In order to satisfy the presidential blueprint, the treasury will have to

MORRILL TAKES WYOMING POST ON NEW YEAR'S

LARAMIE, Wyo., Dec. 31—Dr. James Lewis Morrill, vice president of Ohio State University since 1932, will become the 11th president of the University of Wyoming tomorrow.

He will succeed Dr. A. G. Crane, who was dismissed last March after 18 years in office.

Dr. Morrill, an Ohio State graduate in 1913, served for several years with the Cleveland Press as reporter, copy reader, political writer and legislative correspondent. He later became city editor and acting managing editor of the publication.

Head Of Monroe School To Enter Armed Service

Byron Stoe, superintendent of Monroe Township school, has informed his board of education that he plans to enlist soon in Uncle Sam's fighting forces. Stoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Stoe, is 28 and eligible for service.

He was given a deferment by Selective Service officials until January 10 and plans to volunteer prior to that date so that he may choose the branch of service in which he will serve. He has not indicated whether he will seek a place in Army, Navy or Air Force.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of Pickaway County School, said Wednesday that he understood that the Monroe board had decided to elevate R. E. Hurst, Monroe principal, to the superintendency, electing another teacher to fill Mr. Hurst's place.

Mr. Stoe is a graduate of the Monroe School and was promoted from the principal-coaching job to the superintendency. He is now serving his second year as superintendent.

Zero Hour At Hand, War Department Says, After Reviewing Situation; Nipponese Hurling Dive Bombers Into Fray

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—The fate of Manila was shrouded in a communications blackout today as the heavily-outnumbered forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur attempted to organize their lines against the merciless blitz of Japan's swarming invaders.

Although nothing was officially stated, Washington steeled itself for the possible fall of the Philippine capital, barring some last-minute miracle that only a MacArthur could effect.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—With the zero hour believed to be at hand in the Philippines, the War Department today announced that U. S. forces have completed readjustment of defense lines and are inflicting heavy losses on the ever-increasing hordes of Japanese invaders.

The terrific offensive launched against Manila by the Nipponese is being bolstered by swarms of dive bombers backed up by the use of armored units, a War Department communique stated.

The valiant defending forces under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur continue "to offer strong resistance" however, the communique said.

Although general in its description of the hostilities, the communique indicated that the invading hordes had progressed both on the north and south in their pincer movement directed toward Manila.

The communique read:

"PHILIPPINE THEATRE: The enemy continues to exert heavy pressure on all fronts with extensive use of dive bombers and armored units. In spite of these difficulties, a further readjustment of our lines has been completed in an orderly manner.

"American and Philippine troops continue to offer strong resistance, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. "There is nothing to report from other areas."

Heavily outnumbered in the advance of clanging mechanized units, the combined American-Filipino defenders were forced to fall back on the Lingayen Gulf front as well as in the region of Atimonan, according to early reports. Indications were that the Japs, however, had suffered increasingly heavy losses as the drive gained momentum.

Military men who know the battle terrain predicted, moreover, that the Mikado's soldiers will pay an even more gory price in life and limb for each inch of advancement as the tentacles of the storming conflict clutch closer to Manila.

This theory was based on the fact that Gen. MacArthur will be able to shorten his lines, establish more strategic stands and increase defensive firing power by hurling his full force, some of which was waiting in Pampanga province, against the enemy drive.

Devastation Prevails

While the thunder of battle roared menacingly no more than 50 miles over the southern horizon and almost as close in the north, Manila churches, schools and convents lay in shattered ruins following Japan's brutal air raids. Uncounted victims reposed in death or writhed in agony as a result of the unwarranted bombings of the open city.

Qualified experts freely predicted that a full and devastating retribution will one day be exacted from Nippon and its people.

President Roosevelt even went so far as to hint that the United States may swing the lethal blow of vengeance from Russia's (Continued on Page Four)

ALIENS IN TRIO OF AREAS MUST GIVE UP RADIOS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—The Department of Justice today ordered all enemy aliens in the United States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to surrender all radio transmitters, short wave radio receiving sets and cameras to local police.

This supplements an earlier order which applied only to eight west coast states.

Attorney General Biddle announced that failure to surrender the prohibited articles makes the enemy alien liable for internment for the duration of the war.

Demand for More Production Pleases Pickaway County Folk

ANNUAL REPORT OF EXTENSION AGENT WRITTEN

F. K. Blair Finds Rural Residents Willing To Aid Government

LABOR SCARCITY CITED

Review Of Activity During 1941. Read: More Women, Children To Work

By Austin Showman
A farm program which has seen an increase in agricultural production, active participation from rural youth, government planning and regulation, and a growing role for agriculture in the destiny of the Circleville community has been summarized in the 1941 report of County Extension Agent F. K. Blair.

Pickaway County farmers have welcomed the change in the general agricultural policy of the federal government to meet defense needs, the program of abundance meeting with the approval of every one engaged in the production and handling of farm commodities, the county agent reports.

The demand for increased production of farm products will be met to the fullest extent in Pickaway County, farmers have pledged, providing an acute shortage of labor does not develop during the coming year. Mr. Blair maintains that farmers already are feeling a shortage of labor necessary to carry on their usual farm activities.

The type of farming which may be followed in 1942, due to labor shortage, will force an increase in hand labor on the farms. This especially applies to such types of farming as dairying, poultry raising and vegetable production. The county agent warns that more women and children will be needed in the fields and farm yards than at any time in recent years. Many young men and young women that have assisted in extension projects in the past are no longer available, due to the war emergency.

Cooperation Noted
Mr. Blair credits much of the success of the extension program in the county to the cooperation of organizations and individuals, and holds that with the friendship and support of such groups and individuals, the extension service of the county is in a strong position to provide valuable service to the rural and urban people.

The government's Agricultural Adjustment Administration has played a dominant role in local agriculture during the last year. A total of 1,626 out of 1,887 farms in the county was signed with the 1941 AAA program. This represented approximately 85 percent of the farming area of the county. A total of 1,086 wheat loans and 14 corn loans was made to grain growers. 3,625 tons of lime were distributed through the AAA Grant of Aid and 600 tons through price purchase. Pickaway County in 1941 received the largest government benefit payment for soil conservation practice of any county in the state. Total payments were $285,000. Total benefit payments for soil conservation and parity payments amounted to slightly over $407,000.

Farmers Assisted
In addition to receiving direct payments, farmers have been benefited from the program by following better crop rotation and soil building practices. They have become soil-conservation conscious to such an extent that they are seeking methods of erosion control, sheet washing, rotation practices and other activities beneficial to the soil. Mr. Blair reports This increased interest has resulted in a larger acreage of legume crops, higher yields of corn and small grain and larger returns from pasture acreages.

In the field of farm management, twenty-seven farmers were given assistance in reorganizing their farms on a more efficient operating basis.

During the last year more than 1,000 farmers have taken advantage of the Farm Credit Commodity Associations offered through governmental channels. These include wheat and corn loans, Farm Security loans, crop loans, Production Credit loans, Federal Land Bank loans and loans to cooperatives.

Electricity has been extended to more than 1,000 farmers through the South Central Rural Electric Company. Lines are being extended as rapidly as wire and equipment can be obtained. The National Defense program with priorities for defense industries has slowed the progress of rural electric expansion, but at the present time approximately 75 percent of the farm homes of the county have electricity.

A marked increase in the number of silos being built can be noticed in the county, Mr. Blair observes. The decrease in corn acreage has necessitated livestock producers finding new ways of conserving feed. Feed grinders, hay choppers and mixers are now employed to a greater extent than usual in the preparation of feed for livestock.

2,500 Trees Planted
About 2,500 forest trees were planted in Pickaway County as a result of the Wild Life Conservation program. During the last several years, about 200,000 young forest trees have been planted on farms in the county.

Livestock production has been on the increase in Pickaway County for the last 18 months. Breeding herds are being built up, inferior and aged animals are being culled out, and a general overhauling of the breeding practices is taking place on many of the livestock farms. The county agent believes that cattle feeders have experienced disappointment in marketing during the last six or eight months, and this, coupled with the high price of feeder cattle, has resulted in marked decrease in number of feeder cattle this fall. Less cattle may mean better prices in 1942.

Four-H Club boys and girls have been active in the county during the year. Twenty-nine boys and girls were enrolled in the 4-H beef projects. Forty-five animals were included in the beef club the animals was 950 pounds and program. The average weight of the average price received was $13.65.

Fifteen boys and girls already have enrolled for the 1942 feeding season. Forty-five boys and girls were enrolled in the 4-H purebred gilt projects. Forty of these animals were exhibited at the State Fair, where they brought blue ribbons in the classes of Spotted Poland China, Chester White, Duroc Jersey and Poland China.

Fifty boys and girls were enrolled in the 4-H club market project. Twenty-nine boys and nine girls enrolled in the 4-H club sheep projects. Much of the sheep improvement work being done in the county, Mr. Blair believes, is going on in the flocks of members of the 4-H clubs. Boys and girls are following approved practices of docking, parasite control and management.

Much Stock Handled

During the last year the Pickaway County Livestock Cooperative Association handled 14,894,590 pounds of livestock. In the field of dairying, the Pickaway Dairy Association reported its volume of milk doubled since November 1, last year. This increase is partially accounted for by an increase in patrons. However, milk haulers report that the average amount of milk being sent in by the individual producer has increased considerably. Volume of business of the Pickaway Creamery was over $400,000 in 1941. Total production of milk during the last year was 3,574,278 gallons while butter churned in the farm homes amounted to 73,357 pounds.

Egg and poultry prices have created new interest in the poultry industry in Pickaway County. The Pickaway Dairy during the last year bought 297,907 dozen eggs on grade.

Average corn yield in Pickaway County has increased from 39 to 44 bushels an acre during the period from 1935 through 1941. The county agent credits this increase, in part, to the use of hybrid corn. Approximately 70 percent of the corn acreage in the county is planted to corn hybrids.

Soybeans are becoming an increasingly important crop in the county. Approximately 15,000 acres of soybeans were produced in 1941. The acreage yield was below average, due to the extreme drought during the growing season. Reports ran from 5 to 42 bushels to the acre. Estimated county average was 15 bushels to the acre.

Four-H Club work outside the livestock clubs was an important part of the farm program in 1941. A total of 255 girls and 174 boys were enrolled in 4-H club projects. Five hundred projects were carried, with 18 men and 27 women acting as leaders and supervisors. An outstanding part of the 4-H club program in 1941 was the club participation in the Circleville Pumpkin Show. Mr. Blair estimates that 10,000 persons visited the 4-H club exhibits.

Through the county agent's soil testing program, 118 samples of soils were tested in 1941. More than 4200 tons of lime and 780 tons of fertilizer were purchased cooperatively by farmers in the county to meet soil needs. Double that amount was purchased by individual farmers through private fertilizer manufacturers. The results of the application of lime to Pickaway County soils, is beginning, Mr. Blair reports, to show up in better crops and in increased tonnage of alfalfa produced.

Bang disease among cattle is still prevalent in almost every community of the county. In 1941, 46 herds including 691 cattle were tested. Sixty-three reactors were found. Mr. Blair concludes his report by listing four main achievements of the farm program during 1941. They are: 1. A large number of organizations have participated in the extension program; 2. A strong program has been conducted by the young people of the community; 3. There has been a continued inter-relationship between city and county folk and 4. Local agencies, individuals, and organizations have assisted and cooperated in furthering the interests of agriculture in the county.

Hitler now announces that the Russian forces are superior in equipment and in men. It must come as a distinct shock to German troops to learn that they are only the second-best invincible army in the world.

LANDTS GUEST

Two soldiers and two sailors were the guest sing-alongers on the Landt Trio's "Sing Along" program last Thursday via CBS. Indulging in some old-fashioned barber-shop harmony, they all joined in "Down By the Old Mill Stream." Next Monday, January 5th, the Landts will have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Landt Sr., who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary.

SWING IN WASHINGTON

Raymond Gram Swing, distinguished and authoritative interpreter of world news developments, is moving his office from New York to Washington so that he may keep in closer touch with news breaks originating at the hub of the nation.

Swing's New York office has been on the 18th floor of the Mutual Broadcasting System's building seven floors beneath the studio from which he broadcasts. In Washington he has taken combined living and office quarters in a hotel. His first regular broadcast from Washington will be Monday January 12 at 10 p. m. and will be fed to the Mutual network through station WOL.

WAR NEWS

It was many months ago that WLW began to prepare for the present situation in order that its listeners might be ensured complete and accurate coverage on all events involving our National Defense effort. With this end in view, it was the goal of the Nation's Station to make all necessary preparations to be ready when the day of need arose. The first step in this program was the assurance of an authoritative staff, competent in reporting and evaluating the importance of news events.

The station was fortunate in possessing such interesting and well informed news reporters as Peter Grant, H. R. Gross, Elizabeth Bemis, and William Dowdell, news editor of WLW. Grant has been recognized nationally for years as one of the premier newscasters of the country, and H. R. Gross came to the Nation's Station after having established himself as the most popular news reporter in the Middle West. Miss Bemis because of her distinctive delivery and her brilliant presentation of the woman's point of view has become indispensable to listeners.

Lina Romay, who used to be heard on Xavier Cugat's "Rumba Revue", was screen-tested this week. She's being considered for a long-term contract.

CONFAB OF RED CROSS SET FOR FRIDAY AT 7:30

Carl C. Leist, chairman of the Pickaway County Chapter, American Red Cross, again urges all Red Cross workers, including solicitors from all the county districts, to attend a mass meeting in Common Pleas Court room of the Court House Friday night. The meeting will begin at 7:30. At Friday night's session final instructions for opening the Red Cross War Relief Fund campaign will be given to solicitors. The campaign for $8,500 will open Monday and continue for one week.

Several appeals for generous donations have been received from National headquarters by local officials.

The Red Cross has cabled $50,000 each to the Philippine Red Cross Chapter and the Hawaii Red Cross Chapter to provide for expanded services to the armed forces and to meet emergencies of shelter, food, clothing and medical aid for the war wounded and evacuated population of the islands.

This is in addition to $25,000 previously sent to the Hawaii Red Cross and $50,000 to the Philippine Red Cross, and large stocks of clothing, medical supplies and 50-bed first aid stations shipped before the enemy attack, and as a preparedness measure.

"We are meeting the emergency of the entire population," Alfred Castle, chairman of the Hawaii Red Cross cabled today. "Everyone is calm and courageous and cooperating fully with the authorities," he added.

Mr. Castle asked that the Red Cross on the mainland immediately rush to him 500 hospital pajamas, and light clothing for 10,000 women and children. He also requested 10,000 sweaters for men, women and children, 5,000 wool blankets and a million surgical dressings.

The Red Cross had previously

Herald Carriers Guests Of Honor At Banquet

Carriers who serve readers of The Daily Herald were guests of honor Tuesday evening when a turkey dinner was served at Franklin Inn. The Circleville Publishing Co. was host at the dinner, 18 youngsters being seated at one large table, on which tiny American flags had been placed at each plate. A larger flag graced the center of the table.

The turkey dinner for carriers is an annual event, the youngsters being entertained in appreciation for their services during the year.

The boys were thanked by Tom E. Wilson, publisher of The Herald, for the part they have played in giving The Herald its largest circulation in history. The guests were thanked also for doing their part for Uncle Sam by selling Defense Stamp and Bonds. Nearly all of the carriers have sold at least a few stamps, several of the boys turning in fairly large totals in sales.

Boys who attended the dinner

The carriers were guests of the Cliftona Theatre after the dinner.

RIFLE, PISTOL CLUB TO HELP DEFENSE WORK

Members Volunteer Aid In Case Of Emergency In Pickaway County

SHERIFF AT MEETING

Group Names James Shea As President During 1942 Season

Members of the Pickaway County Rifle and Pistol Club pledged their support Tuesday night to a program of community protection in case of a war emergency.

The program, a part of the Defense Council's plan for the protection of lives and property in the Circleville community during any emergency, calls for a group of fifty men who can be mustered within a few minutes' notice. Its work may be to guard bridges, break riots or perform any other duties in connection with a war-time emergency. They will work in connection with the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff appeared at the meeting in the rifle range to outline the program and asked that the rifle club serve as a nucleus in the formation of the volunteer guard. Members of the club who wish to volunteer for such a service have been asked to give their names and addresses to James T. Shea, president of the club.

Members of the club discussed with the sheriff the vital points in the county which might be damaged by spies or by enemy invasion. It was pointed out that destruction of roads, bridges or power plants in the county might affect the whole central section of the state.

Rifle Club members organized Tuesday night, selecting James Shea as their president for 1942. Jay Clark will serve as vice-president and George Green as secretary-treasurer.

Matches next year will start at 7:30 p. m. instead of 8 and the teams will shoot both prone and kneeling positions.

Florida is said to have 3,751 miles of coastline, more than any other state.

Walter Pidgeon and Maureen O'Hara top the featured cast which includes Donald Crisp, Anna Lee, Toddy McDowell, John Loder and Sara Allgood. "How Green Was My Valley" will be shown at the new deluxe Grand Theatre for three days starting Sunday.

Canal Zone On 'Alert', Adkins Youth Writes

The state of alert that exists in the Canal Zone where he is stationed in Uncle Sam's Army was discussed by Private David Adkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Adkins, East Main Street, in two letters the youth's mother received from him recently. Young Adkins, an enlisted soldier, is in the gunnery and bombing detachment stationed at Albrook Field, Rio Hato.

He wrote that the attack by Japan on Pearl Harbor was a signal for the Canal Zone to be put on a war footing with every precaution being taken against the possibility of attack.

"Everything is keyed to a high pitch, as you can well imagine," he wrote.

"Troop and tank movements have been passing here steadily and machine guns have been set up on the field and even on top the hangar in the radio tower. All men are being confined to the reservation.

"We are blacked out, except for a few shaded lights here and there."

Adkins discounted reports heard at times concerning low morale in the armed forces. "At times like this," he wrote, "the real morale shows up and it is by no means low. If you could talk to each man and understand how he feels toward our enemies you would not doubt that ours will be an ultimate victory."

Rio Hato is on the Pacific side of the Canal Zone, and the Adkins youth included a note in his letter that the Marines had already arrived there and had set up coastal defenses.

Nazi apologists would have us believe Hitler didn't go to Berchtesgaden to mend his shattered nerves. Maybe he just hurried home to superintend the hanging of the wallpaper.

Undoubtedly, President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress—due next week—will be devoted in part to the methods of financing the program. In the light of his partial revelations yesterday, it is expected that the President's message will carry with it suggestions as to the methods of raising taxes and cutting civilian demands for virtually all durable goods.

Virtually all manufacturing plants, both large and small, must play a part in producing for war if President Roosevelt's goal is to be achieved, production experts declared.

To Be Bread Basket
The new program, commencing the nation's productive effort, will affect the farmer as well as the manufacturer, for America is to become the "bread basket" as well as the "arsenal" for the democracies.

Currently, the lend-lease program has committed the United States to a program of supplying large quantities of food as well as guns for the democracies. It was anticipated in agricultural quarters that this part of the program would be increased, in order to permit other anti-axis nations to draw a larger proportion of their manpower into military service and war production.

NEW YORK—There'll be no let-up in production on New Year's Day in virtually every plant in the greater New York area and throughout New Jersey which is geared to all-out war production. Instead of celebrating the advent of a New Year, workers will remain at their benches and turn out ships, guns, planes and other war materials to supply the nation's fighting men with the essentials of war.

EVANSTON, Ill.—It would be far better to put one's New Year's resolutions into effect before the beginning of tonight's celebration than to wait until tomorrow, at least so far as drinking is concerned, the National Women's Christian Temperance Union said today in its annual admonitory statement.

But those who "insist on their annual carousal," the temperance organization told to "remember that the drinker's behavior New Year's Eve will be due entirely to the percentage of alcohol in his blood."

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS PRESENT SCIOTO SCHOOL BOARD MAY SERVE AREA

An opinion from Thomas Herbert, Ohio attorney general, sent to County Prosecutor George Gerhardt, maintains that it is not necessary for the probate judge to appoint a new board at Scioto Township School as a result of the centralization vote held there December 9.

Mr. Herbert's decision was that the present board might serve until the new board meets early in January.

The question of a new board for the Scioto Township school district arose when the district voted 258 to 196 for centralization.

THOMPSON MUST DIE FOR CARL HOOVER'S MURDER

Wayne Thompson, of Columbus, will go to the electric chair January 21 for the murder of Carl Hoover, Columbus chain store manager.

Hoover, whose mother is the former Cora Leist, a native of Circleville, had many relatives in the local community.

The state supreme court Wednesday upheld the conviction of Thompson for the murder of the store manager last April 22, and set the execution date for January 21.

Thompson entered the store at 1620 Oak Street, and after asking for cigarettes, attempted to hold up Hoover, and then shot him.

He was arrested by Columbus police who traced him through the automobile he used to make his getaway from the second holdup.

Adolf Saw U. S. Going Into Strife

the combined sea power of England and America, and his planes and surface craft would drive rivets into that steel net on the Atlantic around England.

From his side of the military viewpoint, he argued, there was nothing to fear from America.

"Long ago," Hitler said, "I saw America inevitably being led into this war. There is a limit to everything and people playing with dynamite are going to get hurt."

People Warned

"I told the German people day in and day out since more than a year now that they must be prepared to face America at war. I felt it my responsibility to keep our people mentally and morally prepared for all such eventualities. I also took all the military precautions essential to the safety of our position over here."

"Today I have a clear conscience and feel sure that come what may, America from the military standpoint can do nothing to hurt us on this continent. Her entry into this war will cost many a brave U-boat or naval or luftwaffe German his life."

"We may be compelled by American aggression over here to undertake new tasks to defend ourselves. Whatever that is, we shall not be afraid to do it and meet the enemy man to man."

He caught himself suddenly, peering fixedly at the dog, and said: "There is more than one way of fighting America. I can let Herr Roosevelt in for a few surprises. It's all a matter of how you do it."

"Of course, I cannot walk across the Atlantic and America from the standpoint of invasion, might as well be up on the moon, but on the other hand the same goes for Herr Roosevelt. He has lots of ships at his disposal to bring an expedition over here for an attack on us or to occupy some undefended islands this side of the Atlantic, but I hold the coasts of Europe and I am ready any time he wants to come over here with one million or five million to fight it out once and for all."

"We Germans know we are fighting for our very existence, be that in Africa or on the Don. We Nazis also have a cause to fight for and nobody can rob us of the ideals and principles we fought for over the last twenty years."

"Do you think for one moment that any single German outside of an idiot or two ever wants to go back to the days of hunger, starvation, and Bolshevism inside our land?"

"There can be no choice, even if they wanted it."

"Stalin and his Red armies are practically smashed, sitting over there beyond the mud and snow hoping against hope that England and America will save them from the final reckoning. There have been minor setbacks through climate, transportation and other circumstances but these difficulties all will fade away when the time comes to resume the grand scale operations we have now suspended."

Stalin No Longer Factor

"Stalin can go sit behind his Urals and talk as he wants to, he will then no longer be a factor in this world. Bolshevism will never again be permitted to gain a foothold on this continent. Russia no longer will be just a vast armament factory exploited and dedicated solely the task of generating sufficient military power behind a curtain of silence to carry through the Moscow dream of revolution."

(Editor's Note: This portion of the interview clearly proves how greatly Hitler erred in underestimating Russia. When the interview was granted, Moscow had been evacuated by the government and Nazi troops were driving eastward on all three sectors of the bloody battlefield. Today, the government has returned to Moscow (Stalin never left), the German armies are retreating swiftly in every sector, desperately striving to keep the conflict from their own soil, and Hitler felt "intuitively" compelled to dismiss General Field Marshal Wal-

102, Determined to Fight Japs

ther Von Brauchitsch and appoint himself commander-in-chief of all Nazi forces.

"There will never again be a Red army of fantastically armed millions. These untold resources and raw materials and wealth of the land will be turned to a new task by me: I intend in the shortest time possible to turn Russia into the European bread basket, the factory and the industrial nerve center. There is no limit to its possibilities, and we know how to make the most of the opportunity."

Outside it was getting dark, although it was scarcely five o'clock. Fidgety attendants and adjutants were sufficient proof that I could soon go down through the path to the spur of railway track with the little station especially built near Fuehrer headquarters to receive visitors from the outside world. They come and go all day long, handled with care or politely given their bill of fare as served on the new order program of Hitler's Europe.

Here, in that very same room of the fireplace and round table, Hitler plotted his revenge against the man in Washington he fears. Here, in the very chair I sat in, sat time and again Japanese Ambassador in Berlin General Oshima, Yankee Hater No. 1 and in a way the father of the revived anti-Communist pact.

Many Plots Formed

In this room Hitler and Oshima in company of champagne king and Foreign Minister Ribbentrop put their heads together repeatedly to hatch out in long and weary sessions the exact details of the plot against America.

The political consent and agreements between the governments of Tokyo and Rome for such a policy undoubtedly were the first essential. That is shown by the fact that Mussolini during the late summer and fall twice came all the way from the seven hills to Fuehrer headquarters in Russia. Even then, I doubt if today either Oshima or Mussolini could identify the exact location of Fuehrer headquarters.

You never ask Hitler any questions like that any more than you get down to brass tacks about his girl friends. You can do that with Mussolini and he'll talk by the hour of love and lovers, but never Hitler.

Knowing the ways and methods of Hitler after all these years, I could easily imagine the process and procedure arrived at in weaving to perfection Hitler's two-fold move against the United States.

As far back as the forging of the three power pact in Berlin he laid the ground work for his war of revenge and desperation against Roosevelt. From that basic political agreement of September 1940 the wily Fuehrer was able to spin his web of intrigue and world war.

Gunning For Russia

He was beginning to lay his guns for Russia, and in strictest confidence was able therewith to assuage both Mussolini and Hirohito. He told them to be patient and keep in mind that Nazi Germany in its conception would always remain the mortal foe of Bolshevist Russia. But they must bide their time and do nothing prematurely.

It explains the strange self-assurance of both Italy and Japan during the trying six months that followed, interspersed with rumors of trouble underneath the surface between Berlin, Tokyo and Rome.

Actually, this was a false front deliberately manufactured by the propaganda machines of the three countries to hide from the Anglo-Saxon world and from Soviet Russia the deeply laid plot that was brewing.

Once set on this course, Hitler rid himself in Berlin of the pro-American Japanese Ambassador Kurihara, who had replaced Oshima in the latter's downfall after the signing of the Hitler-Stalin deal in August of 1939. Early in 1941 he maneuvered the reappointment of Japanese ambassador to Berlin of General Oshima and from that time on the Fuehrer had a free hand to chart the course of his Machiavellian plot. It was not definite at first whether this radical resort to war against America would become necessary after a blitz defeat of Russia. In fact, Oshima was convinced, America was bluffing and would back down before Japanese demands if behind those demands in the Far East stood Hitler and Mussolini as victors unparalleled in the battlefield of Russia.

The failure subsequently by the German armies to secure that blitz decision over Stalin in 1941 seriously upset the apparent for the tripartite plotters.

It remained for all concerned to map out in the last and finest detail the military coup aimed to knock out both the American and British spearheads of defense in the Pacific.

Meetings Conducted

I can imagine that day after day in this room where I sat Hitler expounded the absolute need for secrecy and surprise.

An Italian mission from the general staff and a group of high officers from the general staff from Tokyo soon met in the finely shielded remoteness of Fuehrer headquarters.

There before the maps of the Pacific and Far East Hitler's pencil drew a circle around the spot identified as Pearl Harbor in Hawaii. He drew similar circles around tiny dots of the Midways, Wake Island and Guam, denoting the Philippines with a cross for occupation by Japan.

My guess is that the Dutch Indies, Singapore and Australia were treated similarly. Each and every pencil mark called for action at a given moment by the Japanese fleet and air force. The consultations over details with the German general staff and the Japanese military must have been long and lengthy, guided always by the Hitler plan.

Then, after the initial attack Hitler and Mussolini were to come in with a moral boost for Japan by declaring war on the United States.

I left that place with the feeling that something was in the air. Actually I had come to it as closely as anyone outside of the plot could possibly have come to it. The war is on now, and my hunch which said the attackers failed to cause more than slight damage.

At the same time, the British Eastern headquarters announced a new R.A.F. smash at the Japanese air base at Sungai Patani and indicated Japanese pressure has eased greatly on the Perak battle front in northwestern Malaya.

Martial law with all its grim connotations now rules this city, the string regulation being called into play after Japan's first heavy aerial assault.

Four raids comprised the Jap assault from the air, but so ably did the Singapore defenses swing into action that the attackers were beaten off without being able to unload full charges from their bomb racks.

Casualties and property damage were negligible.

TIN PUT UNDER RIGID PRIORITY BY UNCLE SAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The priorities division of the OPM issued an order today placing rigid restrictions on the use of tin except in cans and containers.

The order listed 29 items, such as foil, jewelry, novelties, souvenirs, refrigerator trays, slot machines, toys, musical instruments, for which the use of tin would be prohibited effective April 1, 1942.

The order placed no restriction on the use of tin for cans and containers, but the OPM said a conservation order will be issued shortly to limit production and use of cans and containers.

The order stated that all manufacturers using tin—except for containers and several other uses—must limit their consumption in any calendar quarter starting January 1, to 50 percent of the amount using in the corresponding quarter of 1940. The OPM explained that stoppage of shipments of tin from British Malaya was the reason for the order.

CARS HIT AT CORNER

Police reported a minor traffic accident at Court and Franklin Streets Tuesday night when a dry cleaning truck driven by Arnold A. McKenzie, 120 York Street, and the car of John C. Goeller, East Mound Street, collided. The left rear fender of the truck and the right front fender of Goeller's car were damaged.

that I would never again set foot in this house is now confirmed.

There was in my mind not so much at that time the things that Hitler said but rather the things he had said in the years gone by in private and intimate circles. That was before the war, when he was still building up his armies and blitz machine. Without knowing for sure whether he would master even a part of Europe.

In those days he was hoping to find a way to smash Communist Russia but failing that, as he frequently stated, he would go down on the smoking ruins of Europe and leave no stone on the other. He has repeated that same assertion since World War II got underway, and it is more than an assumption to say on my part that Hitler is fanatic and fatalist enough to carry out not only personally but for Europe the verdict he himself pronounced at the beginning of this war before the German Reichstag.

BATAVIA—Fighting airmen of the Netherlands East Indies ranged over the far Pacific today to carry out the promise of their commander that Jap tankers attempted to steal away with oil looted from wells in British North Borneo would be destroyed. At the same time, the NEI commander-in-chief, Lieut. Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, pledged the Dutch forces could turn the tide against the Japs if they can get more planes and more anti-aircraft guns with which to fight off Jap warplanes.

NEW YORK—A Rome radio broadcast picked up by CBS today claimed that the Swiss press and radio will come under direct control of the state beginning February 1. The Italian broadcast asserted books and pamphlets also will be checked by the Swiss government.

BERLIN—(By Official German Wireless)—The Berlin radio admitted today that the "Soviets landed new troops near Kerch and Theodosia on the Crimean Peninsula for the purpose of relieving pressure on Sevastopol, which has been incessantly attacked by German and Romanian troops since December 17."

CAIRO—A new attempt by Gen. Erwin Rommel to blast his way out of the Agedabia pocket in Libya with his entire mechanized strength was announced by the British middle east high command today.

NEW DILLINGER GANG IS SOUGHT IN MIDDLEWEST

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 31.—A statewide manhunt for two desperate gunmen whom authorities termed the leaders of a "new Dillinger gang" was pressed today following a prison break at the Winnebago County Jail.

Robert Nicholson, 24, and Edward Hoppe, alias George Meyers, 27, both formerly of Cincinnati, armed with revolvers smuggled into their cells, slugged Jailer Roy Higginbottom, obtained his keys, freed three of their comrades and escaped.

Nicholson and Hoppe, who had confessed safe crackings and stick-ups in Milwaukee, Detroit and other cities, were being held on charges of holding up a Rockford bank messenger.

The other fugitives were Wayne Palmer, 18, of Rockford, convicted burglar; Richard Coates, 18, of Rockford, awaiting trial on charges of burglary and larceny; and Harry Smith of San Francisco, held for burglary.

MANY HUNTERS TO BE IN FIELD ON THURSDAY

Close of the rabbit season on Thursday may see many hunters in Pickaway County fields. Lack of snow has prevented good rabbit hunting this season, and farmers report that there are still many rabbits in the fields.

Hunters may use their 1941 H-censes to hunt rabbits Thursday and the license will remain effective until September 1, 1942.

Siberian bases on the Kamchatka Peninsula.

The President, without disclosing details of the nation's war strategy in the Pacific, asserted in a dramatic press conference that Kamchatka is the most practical point west of the Aleutian Islands from which Americans can bore in and smash directly at Japan.

Kamchatka Peninsula, a blunt projection of Asia, sprawls down from the continent to within 1,400 miles of Tokyo.

No Indication Given

The War and Navy Departments, meanwhile, maintained guarded silence on future strategy to bend the Jap aggressors to their knees. There was no indication whatever when nor from where the lethal punch will be pitched.

Military men said there is little doubt that the blow will be struck, however, after the War Department broadly inferred that Japan wrote in treachery its own ticket for destruction of its hearths and homes.

HOLIDAY ALERT TO PREVAIL IN WESTERN AREA

Navy Department Warning
That Foo's Subs May Be In North Heeded

KODIAK AREA NAMED

Noisy Salutes Prevented;
Troops To Be Refused
Any Drinks

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Orders for a "holiday alert" were put into effect today along the Pacific Coast from the Canadian border to Mexico as the result of a Navy Department warning that Japanese craft were suspected of being in the neighborhood of Kodiak Island.

Since the first Japanese submarines invaded coastal waters and began their attacks on American shipping, it had been assumed they eventually would extend their operations to the waters off Alaska Peninsula and the string of Aleutian Islands. Kodiak Island is separated by a strait from Alaska Peninsula.

The warning therefore did not come as a surprise to army and naval officials nor to the men in the street.

Spokesmen for the Twelfth and Thirteenth Naval Districts, at San Francisco and Seattle, respectively, declined to make any comment on the Navy's communique. It was said the recent statement of Navy Secretary Frank Knox that "effective counter measures" against enemy raiders were being taken sufficiently covered the situation.

Gaiety To Prevail

The warning, coupled with the frequently repeated statement by military officials that possibilities of an enemy air raid must not be ignored, increased vigilance of civilian defense groups, but the prospects were that the Pacific Coast would welcome the New Year tonight with much of its accustomed gaiety.

Cafes and night clubs prepared for their big night of the year, but the celebrating crowds were advised to "stay inside."

At the request of Lt. Gen. John L. Dewitt, commanding the coast area, bartenders and liquor licensees will refuse to serve liquor to officers and men in uniform.

Citizens were asked not to drive their automobiles into congested areas tonight. Noisy salutes to 1942 also were frowned on lest the sounding of an air raid alert might be lost in the din.

Portland, in common with several other large coast cities, banned street festivities and other out of door gatherings.

A woman who identified herself as Miss Ava Van Buskirk, a San Mateo nurse, and her companion, C. J. Hyer of Tampa, Fla., were taken in custody by sentries on suspicion of taking pictures of forbidden military installations near the Golden Gate. They later were released after questioning by Army intelligence officers.

Federal agents also questioned and later released Eric Livingston, 43, pest control technician, who described himself as a refugee from Germany. He had been suspected of possessing a prohibited short-wave radio set.

Marking the general tightening of civilian defense regulations, Los Angeles supervisors yesterday adopted a county blackout law

COUNCIL TALKS OF ECONOMIES

Mayor-Elect's Bond Of
$1,000 Approved By Officials

A Council whose duties will be officially ended with the close of 1941 met as a committee Tuesday night to discuss problems of operating the city government during 1942 with a minimum of expenditures.

No official action was taken at the meeting, although councilmen studied at length the anticipated revenue and expenditures for the coming year. Fred R. Nicholas, council clerk, reported that the council made no cuts in salary, as had been rumored, and had not decided on a reduction in the personnel of the police or fire departments.

The committee meeting Tuesday night followed a regular meeting of Council at which it approved the $1,000 bond of Mayor-Elect Ben H. Gordon, who has served as councilman-at-large and chairman of Council's finance committee, will be replaced by Byron Eby. One new member of Council who will fill the vacancy left by Clarence Helvering, appointed city service director, will be filled by Council at its next regular meeting.

FOUR UNDER ARREST IN ASHBROOK CHICK THEFT

Two men from Gallipolis pleaded not guilty before Squire Albert Trego in Chillicothe Tuesday to the theft of chickens from Price Ashbrook, near Yellowbud.

The men were Edgar White, 35, and Earl Johnson, 26. Both were held for the grand jury under $500 bonds. The chickens were stolen July 30.

Ross Siders and his son, George, held in the Ross County Jail awaited grand jury action on a charge of breaking and entering the residence of Schuyler Slager on Christmas Day, pleaded guilty to the charge Tuesday, and also admitted taking chickens from the Ashbrook farm. Snider named White and Johnson as accomplices and both he and his son, George, were bound to the grand jury under $500 bonds.

providing a $300 penalty for violators.

In San Francisco, Mayor Angelo J. Rossi appealed to the Navy for deferment for Chief of Police Charles Dulles, who was called to active duty as a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve.

The mayor, facing a tieup in defense plans following the resignation of Eric Cullenward as director, said he believed Chief Dulles was more valuable in his present capacity at the moment.

President and urge him to include the Pearl Harbor losses in his radio broadcast.

"I have been against the President many times in the past," Gillette said. "But the country is at war now and the President, under the Constitution, is our commander-in-chief. It is not the business of this Committee to assume the right to advise him on public statements. If you go through with this plan, then I want the President to know that the Committee did not act unanimously and that I dissented."

"But our purpose is only a friendly one," a committee member argued.

"No doubt," Gillette replied, "but I see two compelling objections to it. First, in time of war it is the function of the Army and Navy to advise the President on military matters. Second, if this Committee goes to the White House, public confidence may be seriously affected. It might look like Congress is jittery and has no trust in the President and our military leaders."

"It would be tragic if such a thought became widespread. I warn you, gentlemen, we are playing with dynamite. I strongly urge that we do nothing until at least we have heard what the President says tonight."

Gillette's earnest pleading won out. The Committee decided to follow his advice and do nothing for the time.

FDR HOLDS OUT

Whether the President got wind of the secret Committee discussion is not known, but around six that evening, Walsh and Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee got a hurry-up call from the White House.

There the President asked them to look over his speech. After reading it, Walsh indicated he was disappointed that it did not include more information about Pearl Harbor losses. Walsh strongly urged Roosevelt to be more frank, but got nowhere. Except for a few minor changes in text, the President stuck by his original draft.

In the Senate the next morning reaction to the speech was sour. The feeling was general that the President had not been frank, and the cloakrooms buzzed with talk of ordering a congressional investigation to uncover the facts.

Vice President Wallace was disturbed by the situation and consulted his old Iowa friend, Gillette. The Senator warned that something had to be done quickly and urged Wallace to go to the President and tell him so.

"The feeling is strong here that the President held back and is covering up," Gillette said. "If something isn't done right away to allay anxiety, there will be a congressional investigation and nothing will stop it."

Wallace said he didn't relish the job of advising the President. "He knows what he is doing," the Vice President demurred. "I don't think it would do any good for me to see him."

However, the next day private word reached Senate leaders that Knox had been ordered to Honolulu for a first-hand inspection.

"YOU BETTER COME CLEAN"

The day Knox returned to Washington, several members of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee had another talk, and Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, ranking member of the Committee, a close friend of Knox's was urged to tell Knox to "give the public the facts no matter how bad they are."

"The American people can take it," Committee members advised. "Also tell him that if the President doesn't set up a top-notch board of inquiry at once, Congress is sure to order an investigation of its own."

Tydings followed this advice. He called Knox, told him bluntly how Congress felt, counseled a frank report and the immediate appointment of a board of inquiry in which both the public and Congress would have confidence.

"There can be no pussyfooting, Frank," Tydings said. "Feeling is very strong here about the Pearl Harbor affair and unless you and the President act quickly and decisively, Congress will take matters into its own hands."

The next day, after a long session with the President, Knox made public his report disclosing heavy losses and admitting that the Hawaiian commanders had not been "on the alert." The following day the President appointed the board of inquiry headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts.

TOBEY FLOORED

Senator Charles W. Tobey had his eye glasses fixed recently, but he is keeping it strictly to himself. For behind those busted spectacles is an untold story of one of the most hectic and mortifying incidents the bald-organ-voiced New Hampshire Senator ever experienced.

It happened in his home town of Temple whose citizens several months ago sent their Senator a large flamboyant umbrella as a token of their indignation at his appeasement affinities with the late Neville Chamberlain.

This time Tobey received another expression of this public disapproval—from an irate, 150-pound woman who believed in less subtle methods. She was seated in an automobile in front of the village post office, waiting for her husband, when Tobey drove up. As he got out of his car, she went up to him.

"Are you Senator Tobey?" she asked.

"I am, madam," was the dignified reply.

Without further ado, the lady let fly a punch that landed Tobey on the sidewalk and sent his specs flying.

Villagers intervened before any more action occurred. Police took the woman into custody and later sent her to the State Hospital at Concord for observation on the ground that "during the last 24 hours she became violent and struck down a United States Congressman."

Inflamed friends of the woman, who is highly respected in the community, promptly served notice that they would demand a showdown with authorities on whether the charge constituted proper grounds for her detention. They contend she was "railroaded" through political influence. State police claim she admitted that she lost her temper because Tobey had refused to answer her letters criticizing his pre-war isolationist stand.

Tobey's only comment was "The letters were so queer they weren't worth answering."

DAYS OF PRAYER

THE President appointed New Year's Day as a day of prayer for the United States. The day has been variously observed by the American people in the past. Some have used it thoughtfully as a day of planning and organizing their personal affairs. Others have made it a day of hospitality, following traditional customs of open house and refreshment for friends and neighbors. Still others, it must be confessed, have found it a rather blank day of sleep and general laziness, devoted to recovery from celebrations of the night before or from the prolonged holiday festivities. Some families use New Year's Day for taking down the Christmas tree and decorations, putting away gifts and getting the house back to normal appearance and routine. And some, of course, have kept it for themselves as a day of prayer.

The President's reasons for asking for a national day of prayer are found in world conditions and the need of new courage and resolution to meet them.

"We are confident in our devotion to country, in our love of freedom, in our inheritance of courage. But our strength, as the strength of all men everywhere, is of greater avail as God upholds us," says the proclamation. "We need his guidance that this people may be humble in spirit but strong in conviction of the right, steadfast to endure sacrifices and brave to achieve a victory of liberty and peace."

Many will respond to this call, remembering Tennyson's words, "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of." And the response should not be limited to a single day.

HELP FROM BRIDGES

THE most surprising things happen in the U.S.A. these days. The president of the Waterfront Employers Association of the Pacific actually spoke to a reporter in San Francisco the other day in praise of their old antagonist, Harry Bridges. "We want," said the representative of many employers, "to give Bridges every credit due him for his plan to secure maximum production of the docks. He deserves it."

Bridges, it seems, has suggested a practical way to end waterfront strife and get maximum use of waterfront facilities. The plan includes use of labor-saving machinery and suspension of work rules that in-

PROBE ON PEARL HARBOR

WASHINGTON — Secretary Knox's report on the Pearl Harbor disaster, followed by the President's prompt steps to investigate and remove those in command, did much to allay public alarm and indignation. The President and Knox won commendation by their acts.

However, the record of the behind-the-scenes events leading up to these moves, discloses that some plain-talking congressional prodding had something to do with inspiring them.

Inside fact is that the threat of a barefisted congressional probe spurred executive action. Until they heard threatening talk of a congressional investigation, the President and his Secretary of the Navy had sat tightly on the Pearl Harbor lid.

The story of this very significant under-cover tug-of-war begins on Tuesday, December 9, the day after the formal declaration of war against Japan. With the White House and Navy Department maintaining an iron-handed censorship, the Capital was rife with all sorts of disturbing reports of U. S. losses at Pearl Harbor. The Senate Naval Affairs Committee considered the situation so serious that it held a secret meeting to consider whether to take the extraordinary step of urging the President to relieve public anxiety by making a frank report in his broadcast that night.

An exchange of views among the committee members disclosed they were practically unanimous that this should be done, and that either Chairman David I. Walsh of Massachusetts or a delegation should call at the White House.

GILLETTE DISSENTS

However, there was one vigorous dissenter—conscientious Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa.

Gillette is no isolationist. He had opposed involvement in the European war; but after Congress voted approval of the President's defense and foreign policies, Gillette immediately bowed to the will of the majority and wrote Roosevelt assuring his sincere support and offering to serve "in any capacity desired."

So in this Naval Affairs meeting, Gillette determinedly challenged the proposal of his fellow committeemen to call on the terfere with efficient loading of ships. "Bridges," says a newspaper man of wide labor experience and acquainted with the famous trouble-maker of the Pacific Coast, "has thrown himself into this war, and would probably swim to Australia if he thought that would promote unity."

It is one of the fascinating and inspiring things about this nation that people can fight a stout fight against each other over one issue and cooperate wholeheartedly on something else that they consider more important.

Medical Science In 1941 Delayed by the War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Looking back over the year with a view to assessing progress in the things that make any difference to human beings, we find that so far as medicine is concerned the first thing that should be said is that there are very few places in the world where it has been possible in the last year to make any progress in medical science. In fact, there is only one spot in the world where it has been possible—the Western Hemisphere. Canada, the United States, Central America and South America have contributed their share. The rest is silence.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Laboratories Silent
Nothing has come out of the great laboratories, clinics and hospitals of Germany. The once-active French brain is now dead. The clinics and laboratories of England are silent.

In South America a number of valuable researches have come from the physiology laboratory of Professor B. A. Houssay at the University of Buenos Aires. These have to do mostly with the influence of the ductless glands on diabetes and other diseases of nutrition. So important has this work been considered that a number of renowned scholars from such institutions as Johns Hopkins, Harvard and the University of California have been sent down there, both for instruction and to observe Professor Houssay's work.

Use of the Cyclotron
I should select the use of the cyclotron in medical fields as the most important new work being done in the United States proper during the last year. This work is conducted by Dr. Ernest Lawrence at the University of California and has been described twice in these columns during the past year.

The value of the cyclotron lies in two fields. The first is physiological. The second has to do with the treatment of cancer.

In physiology, the cyclotron can attach a radiant substance to a certain group of cells or chemicals in the body, and, since it renders them radiant, actually see the chemical exchange at the sites of activity—how rapid the exchange is, etc. It works equally well for plants as animals, and a plant, with its transparent body so irradiated, can be put in a dark room and the processes of life can be seen in all their beauty.

Neutrons and Protons

The radiant properties of the neutrons and protons which escape from the cyclotron have great possibilities in the treatment of cancer. Already a hospital is being built on the campus of the University of California near the physics laboratory where carefully controlled clinical researches in this field can be carried out.

The rest of the year has been marked largely by the further applications of methods already introduced—the confirmation of the great value of the sulfonamide chemicals in the treatment of all kinds of infections.

"Magic Bullet"

The dream of the "magic bullet," a chemical which will kill germs and do not harm to living human tissue, is partially realized in the magical compounds, and if one can trust the many reports that come in of new forms of these compounds, there may be complete realization within the near future.

The health of the army and the civilian population during this time of national stress, which is at the highest peak that was ever obtained by any army or civilian population in the world under any circumstances, is an added attestation to the value of constant research in the field of medical science.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. W.:—"I have been giving my little boy age seven years two pounds of corn syrup per week along with his oat meal porridge in the morning. One of the ladies at the Red Cross Building told me that this was far too much syrup and that he would develop sugar diabetes in a year or so. Is this true?"

Answer: You tell the lady at the Red Cross Building to get some more information before she gives any more out. While the amount of corn syrup you are giving him might be a little high, it will not cause him to develop sugar diabetes.

Dr. A. W. Holman of Circleville was enjoying an automobile trip through Florida.

Max C. Seyfert Jr. was one of the successful students to pass the state bar examination. He had been reading law in the office of Judge J. N. Abernethy and was a graduate of Everts High School and the Michigan State University.

Wittich's confectionery was filling its ice house with ice taken from the Scioto River, near the bridge. The ice was of good quality and five inches thick.

Even though more nations are involved in World War II than in World War I, it's still difficult to regard the last conflict as just a preliminary bout.

No Refuge from Love

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION — JERRY BRONDFIELD

CHAPTER ONE

MOLLA GLENDON stood at the rail of the ship as it nosed gently past Sandy Hook and up New York harbor. Stray wisps of golden hair fluttered beneath her hat in the brisk winter wind. She pulled her coat collar higher.

The ship was gray, the water was gray, and so, too, was the skyline of lower Manhattan, rising majestically in front of her, almost out of the water itself.

On the surface, it was a somber vista for Molla Glendon as gusty flurries of snow eddied about in the air currents. But there was a faint smile on Molla's face, and a brighter smile in her heart which more than counter-balanced the sullen, leaden skies of the past nine days.

New York . . . Yes, and more than New York, America!

Molla Glendon wanted to hold her breath for fear the tiniest little movement would brush reality away. It was just as she had seen it in numerous news reels in Oslo and London. There they were—the massive, soaring skyscrapers, each one straining skyward to outreach the other. And beyond and below in their deep canyons were the millions of people, scurrying about, unused to blackouts and falling bombs.

Soon, in an hour, she would be one of them. For a brief moment she was afraid. Afraid that she might be swallowed up and lost. She was angry with herself for the very thought. Afraid in New York. That was ironical and silly. It was enough to make her laugh.

The only thing Molla regretted was that no one would be there to meet her at the pier. That couldn't be helped, though. How were the Whitworths to know the ship was getting in a day early? After they once left Liverpool the captain had allowed no messages to be sent out. Not even after they reached the Grand Banks off Newfoundland. He was taking no chances.

When the tug came out to meet the ship, Molla went back to her cabin for a final look at her luggage. Captain Burgwin met her as she came out again. The leathery wrinkles in his face relaxed.

The ship's master extended his hand. "I want to thank you again for what you did for us this trip, Miss Glendon." Then he took her two hands in his. "And best of luck. You deserve it. A full measure of it."

Molla smiled. "Thank you, Captain. I hope I deserve it. But please don't thank me for what I did that night last week. It was nothing much, really it wasn't."

Twenty minutes later the ship edged alongside the pier. Molla took a deep breath and walked down the gangplank. The hard cement felt good. It was America. Solid, just as she knew it would be.

All around her there was an air of mild confusion. A young mother with two baby girls in her arms stood looking about curiously, yet with an expression of infinite relief.

An old man who walked with a cane gestured actively and spoke excitedly in a Central European tongue to a customs man who merely smiled and waited until the old gentleman calmed down and regained his command of English.

Then a customs official approached Molla.

"Your father wants you, Mr. Whitworth."

Taylor Whitworth grimaced at his secretary. "Tell me, Miss Bliss, what are the weather signs on the face of my nearest paternal relative? Unsettled, threatening or stormy?"

His secretary laughed. "Rather fair, I should say, but we aren't giving any guarantees if you expect to go on a picnic."

He grinned, and when Tay Whitworth grinned you got the idea he could dismiss any sort of catastrophe with something less than a shrug.

There was no formality of knocking when Tay barged in on

"I want to thank you again for what you did for us, this trip, Miss Glendon," said the ship's master.

his father. Burton Whitworth made a wild grab at a sheaf of papers which started to flutter off his desk in the draft created by Tay's entrance.

"I wish to heavens you'd forget you were cutting back over tackle when you come in here. At least give us warning, slight as it may be."

"Okay, Dad. One if by land, two if by sea, and three if we pass. Anyway, what's a up besides your temperature?"

Burton Whitworth's hair was rapidly turning gray, but the sharp black eyes and the crisp, well-trimmed mustache gave him an air of vitality, which couldn't be missed. He pursed his lips and made a pointed bridge with his fingertips.

"Well, I'm ready for both barrels," Tay said pleasantly, dropping onto the corner of the desk. "What did I do that I shouldn't have done, or vice versa? Am I fired or do I get another chance?"

"Everything's fine," his father snapped. "In fact, I'm pleasantly surprised at the way you've been keeping your nose to the grindstone of late. I merely want you to perform a little social errand in the family's interest tonight, if you'll be so kind."

Tay perked up his ears. "Go ahead, I'm prepared for the worst."

"Can you remember my mentioning that little Norwegian girl who is coming to work for us?" Whitworth, Sr., continued. "Somehow, her boat got in without our knowing about it late yesterday afternoon. Anyway, she phoned just a short time ago. She went over to the Hotel Regent. That is where you'll pick her up at five tonight and bring her out to dinner."

Tay reached for a cigarette. "So we're going to be stuck, hey?"

Burton Whitworth looked at his son straight in the eye. "Molla Glendon's father was one of my dearest friends years ago. He died much before his time . . . much.

to those who have birthdays today. They may expect financial benefits, happy love affairs, and friendships. An elder may cause worry, however. They should avail themselves of the favoring influences. In character such persons are deeply emotional and romantic, precise, diligent, but could use more concentration. Also they have a talent for music. Born today a child will be very fortunate and extremely popular. Success in any chosen career is assured. In disposition such a child will be kind and charming.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

FORECASTS that we're in for a long war aren't unqualifiedly endorsed by American military men generally. They are reluctant to express such doubts audibly, because they think our public will support a Yankee effort in proportion to the magnitude of the danger it senses. Nor do they actually deny that the danger exists. They concede, indeed, that if the Axis holds together, guessers on a conflict continuing up to 15 or 20 years may be right. Confidently, however, quite a few of them venture the opinion that, with a satisfactory run of totalitarian reverses, the dictators' alliance will be likely to crack up pretty fast.

The Nazis are recognized as very hard boiled. The Italians, though, are believed to be heartily sick of their partnership with their neighbors to the northward and more than prepared to lie down at the first good excuse. The Japs are effervescent when the luck's their way, but are not assessed as good stayers in the event of its turn against them.

Dictator Franco's considered inclined to annex Spain to the Axis if he dared, but it's questioned that he'll feel reasonably safe in taking the risk of precipitating an uprising at home by his republican countrymen who, although he licked 'em and overthrew their government, must still be numerous and spilling for a chance, if his attention is distracted in some other direction, to plunge the nation into a second civil war.

Spain, then, is counted out fairly confidently. It isn't a loss to Herr Hitler, since the latter has had only General Franco's sympathy; no outright help.

IF ITALY QUITS—

Italy's defection, though, would be extremely serious for Adolf. The Fascists, to be sure, haven't given him much fighting assistance, but the effect of their secession from the Axis couldn't but be highly damaging to the Nazis' morale. That Signor Mussolini'll quit him isn't foreseen. It's accepted as a practical certainty that the Fuehrer has him, personally, completely under his thumb.

What's deemed a reasonable possibility is that the Italians themselves, already fed up, will, if they are fed still some more, liquidate Benito and terminate co-operation with the Nazis on their own account. The Germans might retaliate by invading the Mediterranean peninsula, but it wouldn't be a bit beneficial to them to have had their adjoining ally transformed into an additional enemy. Contrariwise, it would just stick them with a fresh front to attend to, and maybe the Italians would scrap better against the Nazis than they have in the latter's behalf, becoming really useful to the anti-Axis alignment.

The Japs launched their blitzkrieg as uglier customers than the Fascists have proved to be, but their weakness is that they haven't the resources to last long against Uncle Sam, while taking care of the Chinese, too—and perhaps the Russians in a short time. Yes, agree Yankee strategists, if the Axis stays put, the war is apt to string along for years, but suppose Italy cuts loose, Spain doesn't join p and Japan tumbles out from exhaustion!

How long can Herr Hitler keep the Nazis going alone?

The surmise is that, with their totalitarian alliance disintegrating, the Germans themselves will be strongly tempted to unload him, as they did the kaiser, particularly if they're offered fairly reasonable terms.

Leads from Italy are quite convincingly to the effect that Benito's crowd is sore enough at his management to end it almost any day. Adolf's clamp on news from Germany is much tighter than Benito's has been able to maintain on Italy's, so it isn't as easy to determine the proportion of possible Teutonic discontent with the Fuehrer's regime, but it appears that there's some of it.

JAPAN'S STATUS

Japan's no very complicated problem.

It's militarists introduced it into the war, but it's people generally aren't enthusiastic for it, manifestly, as testified to by one of its foremost journalists, C. H. Kawakami, Washington correspondent of Domei, its leading news agency, who is volunteering into the United States army for service against the Mikado. And, for some time, Jap business leaders have been openly denouncing the military group for its campaign in China, as economically ruinous to Nippon. The militarists are dictatorial for a while, but can they get away with it indefinitely without popular support, especially if they encounter hard luck?

Maybe it will be a long war, but then, again, maybe not. I half way hate to see it end; it'll be such a painful process getting economics and things straightened out afterward.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, December 31—THE CUSTOMARY pursuit of pleasure in almost unbridled degree, to celebrate the passing of the old and birth of the new year, are under most expansive and exhilarating stimulus of the social, romantic and emotional planets.

An astral combination of all the forces and urges makes for festivity and merrymaking to the Nth degree, with no sedate, restrictive or moderating influence to check them. All else is relegated to the background of long ago, with joy unconfined for the moment.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which the pleasanter and happier aspects of life are uppermost, with comradeship, friendship, love and good will under a generous, warming and expansive glow of leading planets. All should expand and progress in the direction of high ambitions and cherished intimate objectives, with but one note of caution—to give heed to elders and not to shirk obligations.

A child born on this day will be efficient, generous, ambitious and fortunate, with prospect of a successful and very popular life.

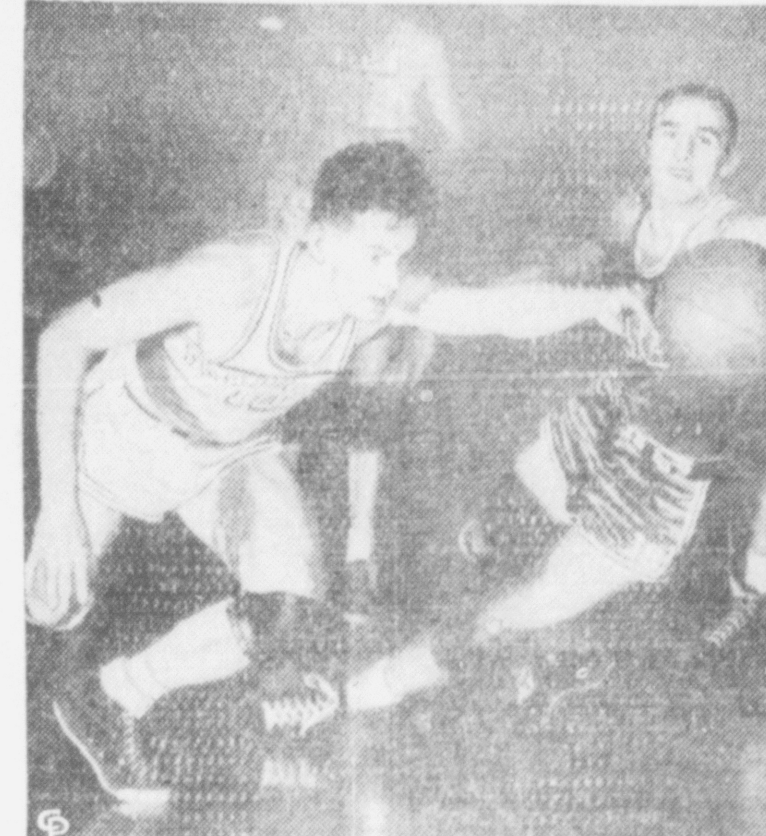

FORT WORTH, Tex.—When Texas Christian university plays in the Orange Bowl game at Miami, Fla., New Year's Day, it will mark the 24th inter-sectional contest in 10 states played by the Horned Frogs in the last 10 years.

MIAMI, Fla.—Ben Hogan and Sam Snead are probably two of the best golfers in the game today and yet neither has won either the U. S. Open, the P. G. A. tourney or the Masters.

FIGHT CARD PLANNED
COLUMBUS, Dec. 31—Columbus will see its first fight card since August 19 tomorrow afternoon when Buddy Walker, Negro heavyweight, meets Billy Nichey of Buffalo, N. Y., in a 10-round bout. Nichey arrived yesterday to complete preparations for the contest.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31—The Great Lakes Naval Training Station's touring basketball team is one of the best all-star outfits in the U. S. Among the players are Frankie Baumholtz, all-American when at Ohio University; Forrest Anderson of Stanford; Ernie Andros of Indiana and Bob Caliban of Detroit.

TRIO OF GAMES ON C.A.C. CARD

Chillicothe And Columbus Quintets On Schedule For Preliminaries

Three cage games are on the schedule Thursday night when the Circleville Athletic Club team takes on the fast Lancaster Red and White outfit.

The first bout starts at 7 o'clock when Cuz Dumm's Emery Club plays the Little Rens, a Columbus AAU quintet which is reported to be strong.

The second game, at 8 o'clock, will be between the Blue Ribbon Dairy and the Chillicothe Allen Drugs. Creighton Anderson and Art Kaiser of Circleville are members of the Drug team.

The Red and White team of Lancaster is a strong one that will test the Athletic Club variety.

XAVIER WINS, WOOSTER LOSES ON HARDWOOD

By International News Service
Ohio basketball got a 50-50 division of the spoils in last night's two-game program when Xavier overpowered Washington & Lee, 58 to 32 but Wooster lost to Duquesne, 40 to 29.

The victory for Xavier was the Musketeers fourth in six starts while Wooster's setback removed the Scots from the list of Ohio's undefeated quintets.

Last night's games were the last of 1941. The opening gun of 1942 will be fired by the Toledo Rockets, who are currently at the head of the pack with seven victories and no losses. Toledo risks this record New Year's night by taking on Dartmouth.

Other games for the week see Ohio Wesleyan invading Mt. Union plus a five-game Saturday night which takes Ohio U. to Xavier, Rio Grande to Salem, W. Va., Hanover to Cincinnati, Ohio Wesleyan to Case and Lawrence Tech to Toledo DeSales.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—Lou Nova, the Yogi man, was enroute to New York today to begin training for his bout with Gus Lesonovich, February 6, claiming that he will be the heavyweight champ within a year, via his new punch—the "Spitfire."

Washington had an air raid blackout last night and when the all-clear siren was sounded and the lights turned back on, there was Nova.

Lou, who dropped in on the capital after cruising to Guatemala, predicted that Buddy Baer will knock out Heavyweight Titleholder Joe Louis within five or six rounds of their bout January 9, and that he will then put the chill on the youngest member of the Baer clan.

The new successor to the comic punch that sorta puffed out when Nova was kayoed by the Brown Bomber, was christened in honor of the RAF's great Spitfire planes. Nova said that the Louis fight taught him that he needed a faster attack.

GREENFIELD DROPS CAGE TILT IN ILLINOIS TOWN

Greenfield McClain's basketball team, unbeaten in Ohio, took one on the chin Monday evening when it invaded Olney, Ill., for the first of a series of three holiday contests. The score was 25-25, the Illinois boys grabbing a 13-3 lead in the first period.

Olney has a clean slate in nine starts.

Don Grate scored 11 points for McClain, but his mates couldn't handle the tall Illinois boys.

McClain was scheduled to play in Paris, Ill., Tuesday evening, and in Watseka on Wednesday. Nothing has been heard from the Paris contest.

FIGHT CARD PLANNED

COLUMBUS, Dec. 31—Columbus will see its first fight card since August 19 tomorrow afternoon when Buddy Walker, Negro heavyweight, meets Billy Nichey of Buffalo, N. Y., in a 10-round bout. Nichey arrived yesterday to complete preparations for the contest.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31—The Great Lakes Naval Training Station's touring basketball team is one of the best all-star outfits in the U. S. Among the players are Frankie Baumholtz, all-American when at Ohio University; Forrest Anderson of Stanford; Ernie Andros of Indiana and Bob Caliban of Detroit.

DUKE FAVORED OVER BEAVERS

Carolina Varsity Work Out Two Hours; 65,000 To See Contest

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 31—Oregon State's Beavers may win the transplanted Rose Bowl game here tomorrow. They may prove that their great defensive record on the Pacific Coast was no accident, and they may even make everybody agree finally that Duke's Blue Devils had no business being unbeaten and untied and leading the nation in ground-gaining. But the Beavers accomplish any of this it will be over a Wallace Wade-coached eleven that has been prepared for this tussle as though life and death hung in the balance.

The entire Duke squad worked yesterday afternoon for a full two hours in the last minute polishing up for the greatest football event in the history of the Carolinas. It was the longest workout of the year for the favorites in tomorrow's game and one of the toughest of all their drills since the season opened early in the fall.

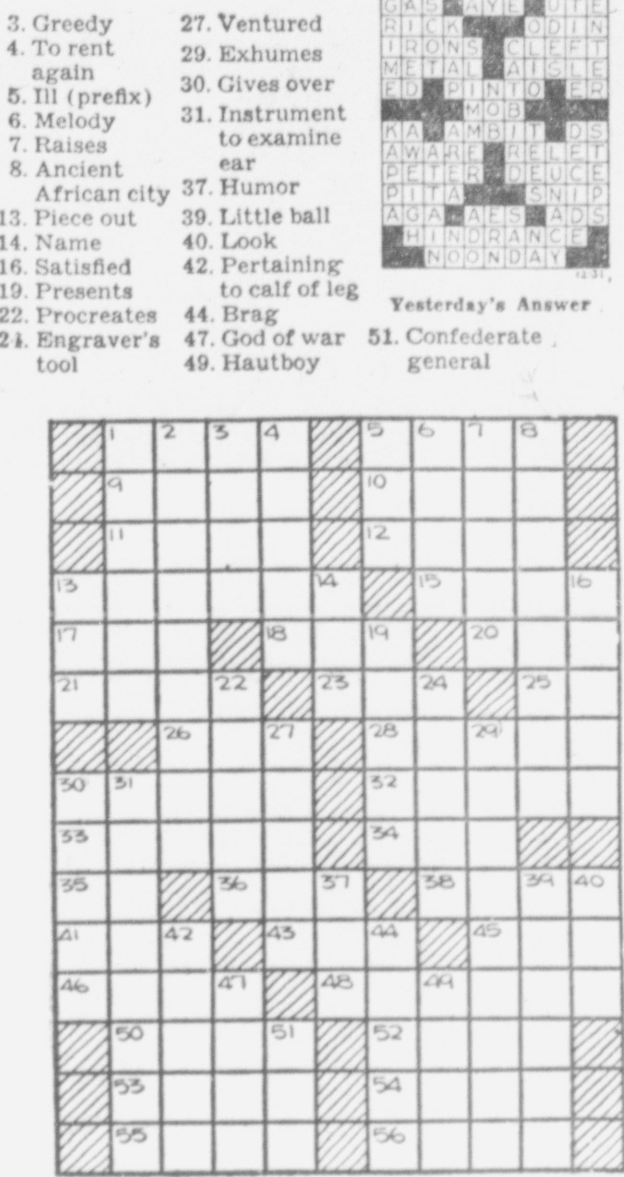

The Beavers went through their customary grind in secret at nearby Chapel Hill, with no announcements forthcoming from their bivouac beyond a terse pronouncement that they are through with hard work and are ready.

So is Duke and everybody who saw them go in that near-record-breaking workout yesterday agrees that the Devils look terrific. If they're not now, they never will be.

They ran plays over and over again

Policemen Act To Guard Tires For John Public

All Motorists Should File Copies Of Serial Numbers With Department

The Circleville police department took steps Wednesday to safeguard automobile tires which have assumed great importance in the last week with government rationing to soon become effective.

New tires can be sold to only certain classes after January 5, the government has decreed, and the 'man on the street' is not one of the classifications included in the sale list.

Only cars that are of absolute necessity to the public welfare, health and safety can be re-tired, the decree holds.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady, Wednesday, urged all motorists to obtain the serial numbers of their tires and to send or take a copy of these numbers to police headquarters where they will be filed.

Filling stations and garages are being instructed to see that all tires on cars being serviced by them carry serial numbers. Many times identifying numbers on tires are buffed off by thieves in an effort to forestall police efforts to trace them.

On finding tires which do not carry serial numbers, service men are asked to obtain the license number of the automobile concerned and to report it to the police.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff pointed out a few days ago that autoists should copy their serial numbers so that tires stolen might be traced more easily.

In the meantime the Circleville committee in charge of tire rationing, headed by Leslie D. May, is awaiting definite instructions.

Chief W. F. McCrady issued his usual New Year's Eve warning Wednesday to automobile drivers who try to mix spirits with gasoline. "If you drink, don't drive," the chief warned. He said his patrolmen would be specially alert.

STATE AIR RAID PLAN IS TALKED

War Industries Will Be Given Protection Under New Plan

COLUMBUS, Dec. 31—Plans to protect Ohio's vast war industries through a telephone network linking air raid protection units were being prepared today as the result of a meeting in Gov. John W. Bricker's office.

A preliminary scheme to put protection service into action and transmit warnings and information was outlined by Randolph Elde, president of the Ohio Bell Telephone company, and telephone engineers.

At the gathering were the governor, Adj. Gen. Whittier S. Bird of the State Guard; Col. Lynn Black of the State highway patrol; Col. Parker Hitt, signal officer of the fifth corps area; Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director; Courtney Burton, executive director of the State Defense Council and several others.

Briefly, the plan contemplates designation of 10 or 12 district warning centers throughout the state, except for the Youngstown area, which would be handled from Buffalo.

These district centers would receive army interceptor warnings from a general air raid protection bureau at Detroit. They would then notify local protection units.

Locally, each community would set up what are called report center centers. All air raid information in the community would be cleared through the local report centers, where ambulances, nurses, doctors, fire fighting equipment and police would be dispatched to points that have been bombed or are in danger.

Specially trained air raid wardens, telephone operators and clerks would operate at the report centers over a battery of telephones. They would be assisted by Boy and Girl Scouts and whatever other organizations are approved by local defense councils.

ATTEMPT TO SABOTAGE CUBAN SUGAR CROP HIT

HAVANA, Dec. 31—Police and Army forces throughout Cuba increased their vigilance today following arrest of five Germans charged with planning to sabotage the coming Cuban sugar crop, all of which is purchased by the United States.

Precautionary measures were intensified at power plants, sugar mills and other industrial establishments and police guards armed with rifles patrolled Havana's electric power plants.

Police Chief Manuel Benitez announced he is seeking enemy agents implicated in the sabotage plot.

FLAG SHOULD BE WAVING IN OHIO RURAL DISTRICTS

CINCINNATI, Dec. 31—Believing that the American flag should be displayed in rural areas as well as in cities, Clayton Martin, Anderson Township farmer, has started a personal campaign to have Old Glory wave from every farm home.

Anderson has set the example for his neighbors by making a tall flag pole out of a locust tree and flying the colors over his five acre tract of land every day. His son raises and lowers the flag morning and night.

Anderson says that his only regret is that his ground is not higher so the banner may be seen for a greater distance by a larger number of people.

SENATORS URGE AIR CORPS JOB FOR LINDBERGH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—Wide-spread hope that the War Department will accept Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's offer to serve in America's armed forces was voiced in the Senate today.

Both members who saw alike with Lindbergh on questions of foreign policy and those who opposed him applauded the prospect of his entrance into the Army as a new sign of unity. The flyer offered his services in a letter to Lt. Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army air force chief.

"There may be diversification of opinion in a democracy without cutting off heads," said Sen. Reynolds (D) N. C., chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee. "Now is the time when we must all pull together."

"I don't think we should have the slightest hesitation in assigning Col. Lindbergh to a position where he could serve best."

"By all means," remarked Sen.

Gurney (R) S. D., a member of the Military Affairs Committee. "Accept him for the service the departments wants to assign him."

"I should think that Col. Lindbergh, with his experience, would be valuable to the armed service, and I should like to see him serve," said Sen. Taft (R) Ohio.

Sen. George (D) Ga., also favored acceptance of Lindbergh's offer.

COMMUNION RITES SET

A service of Holy Communion will be conducted by the Rev. L. C. Sherburn at the St. Philip's Episcopal Church at 10 a. m. New Year's Day.

The news that there is going to be a shortage of golf balls assures us that a lot of people we know will enjoy better tempers next summer.
